Romulus Schools Celebrate Martin Luther King's Birthday

By Mae Jackson

On Monday, January 17, 1994, Romulus Community Schools – in conjunction with the Romulus community – will host celebration events in honor of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s birthday.

The celebration, according to Romulus High School principal Thomas Dolan, will include three major events, and is designed to include students, administration, teachers, and the community.

The National Honor Society, under the direction of Alberta Garrett, will present an assembly for the student body. The assembly will incorporate readings, music, and dance with the themes of pride and peace, which were important issues in Dr. King's life.

The afternoon program, which will include the staff of Cory and Halecreek elementary schools and the High School, will be coordinated by Phyllis Wilkerson. The program will focus on multicultural concerns.

At 5:30 p.m., under the auspices of Kathy Hurst, coordinator of Community Volunteers and the Junior Class, a Peace Pole Dedication and Candlelight Vigil will be held on the front lawn of the High School. Following this event, the Romulus community will gather in the High School auditorium for a program that focuses on community pride and peace issues. This event, planned and orchestrated by Gwen Sibert, hopes to host approximately 200 members of the local community.

Everyone is encouraged to attend and join in the celebration.

The Romulus celebration is just one of the many events across the State of Michigan which will remember the life and works of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. A free calendar of these events, called "In Honor of His Dreams," has been compiled by AAA Michigan, and is available to the public at many AAA Michigan branches, the Detroit Urban League, various city government offices, and public libraries. The guide notes memorial services honoring King's life and works, along with lectures, plays, and parades scheduled in January and February.

Below are just a couple of the events listed in the calendar.

Belleville High School

On Monday, January 17, "Living the Dream" – a program celebrating King's birthday – will be presented at Belleville High School's auditorium (501 W. Columbia). Featured will be guest speaker Judson L. Hixson, as well as a multicultural book fair and a display of students' written and artistic expressions. For information, call 697-6380.

Eastern Michigan University

On Monday, January 17, "A World of Difference" – a forum on diversity – will be presented at EMU's Buell Hall. For information, call 487-3045. □

Nuclear Test Participants Urged To Call Government

United States Congressman William D. Ford (D-Ypsilanti) has urged all veterans and civilians who may have taken part in government-sponsored post-war nuclear experiments to call a toll-free hot-line if they suspect such tests may have led to health problems.

"As we look back at the radiation experiments our government conducted on citizens after the Second World War, we are appalled at the failure to disclose to these people the ways in which they served as human guinea pigs," he said.

"I commend the administration, particularly Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary, for moving quickly to declassify the facts of these tests and explore the full extent of the government's scientific research activities, regardless of whether they open the door for a lawsuit against the government."

The Energy Department's toll-free telephone number, 800-493-2998, is staffed by knowledgeable professionals from its Office of Environment, Safety and Health. □

Florence Klein Is Chamber's Person of the Year

On January 6, 1994, Florence Klein, director and founder of the Helping Hand Thrift Shop, was chosen as the Romulus Chamber of Commerce's 14th Person of the Year, and was treated to lunch and presented with a dozen roses by the Chamber's Person of the Year Committee. The Committee – Chamber president Mark Lewkowicz, Bill Crane, Dave Paul, Jason Lovette, Dolores Witzgall, and Donna Hoevemeyer – chose Klein from among several nominees because of her volunteer work in helping the needy. An awards banquet, honoring her for her outstanding volunteer service to the Romulus community, will be held at 6:30 p.m. on March 25 at the Clarion Inn. Donation is $30 per person, payable to the Romulus Chamber of Commerce, located at 31200 Industrial Highway. (All tickets must be purchased by March 11). For more information, call 326-4290.

Pulling the Plug on Kmart

By Tom Shamanski

A few weeks ago, I suffered what I now believe was a temporary state of insanity. Ultimately, it manifested itself in a sudden thought that I should become an auto mechanic. The onset of this condition occurred in Kmart, one of my favorite places about which to grumble.

You see, while hustling to the music section to check out Lyle Lovett's latest CD, She Started Lovin' Me Last Week, I suddenly became dizzy and even more confused than normal, and somehow wandered into the automotive department. Normally, the only time that I set foot in the auto section is when my sister — Judy the Boss — is changing her oil, and she sends me to get her stuff.

Anyway, as my condition slowly abated and I realized where I was, I gazed upward, wondering if this was a sign from God. Did He want me to change jobs and become an auto mechanic? Probably not, I finally figured; God surely has more important things to worry about than where I goof off every week.

More likely, my momentary disorientation stemmed from a week's worth of troubled sleep — which, in turn, was a result of obsessive worry about my old 1981 Chevy. The car had been sputtering and dying hard at every light and stop sign, but I had been reluctant to have the car checked out . . . for no other reason than pure, unadulterated fear. You know what I mean: like the feeling you get when you go to the dentist to have your teeth cleaned and, while there, learn that you need $3 million worth of root canals.

So, after checking out all the Garfields with the suction-cup paws, I actually decided, for some unknown reason, to buy some spark plugs to replace the ones then in my car — even though they had only 120,000 miles on them. However, since I had never done anything even remotely similar before, I wasn't certain what spark plugs looked like, much less how to change them.

Twenty minutes later, I collared the auto-parts guy — "Sorry, I was on break" — and told him what I wanted to do and how I knew absolutely nothing about what I wanted to do. After asking me if I wouldn't rather be home watching I Love Lucy, he finally led me to my spark plugs, plus a little circular doodad for measuring gaps, or something, in each plug.

Naturally, that wasn't all; the auto guy told me that I also needed a specific-size wrench to fit tightly over the plugs. At that point, I began to wonder if it wouldn't be wiser and cheaper to sell the darn car and hitchhike my way through life.

Returning home, I soon discovered that my new, specific-size wrench was — what else? — the wrong specific size. Pulling out the Yellow Pages, I called Kmart . . . automotive section, please.

"Hullo, Kmart."

"Is this the 'auto parts' guy?" I asked.

"Yup."

"I'm the guy who was just there buying a lot of stuff to change my spark plugs," I said. "Do you remember me?"

"Yup."

"Well, the wrench that you sold me is too small," I told him.

"Oh."

"So, what should I do?"

"Buy a bigger wrench . . . and thanks for shopping at Kmart."

The line died — as did my new-found interest in car maintenance. After staring for several moments at my shiny — and useless — new wrench, I turned the Yellow Pages to: "Tune-ups, Automotive." □

EDS Responds to Detroit News Article

On December 21, 1993, The Detroit News published an article titled, "Romulus Waste Well Plan Under Scrutiny."

This article made outrageous and grossly misleading statements about EDS (Environmental Disposal Systems, Inc.) and its Romulus deepwell facility by comparing our project to leaking landfills, casting doubt on our statements that southeastern Michigan is our project's primary market, and inferred that EDS is "fronting" for other individuals.

1. Neither Douglas Wicklund, EDS, nor any of EDS' employees have now, or have ever had, any relationship of any kind with Oakland Disposal, Inc., or the Waterford Hills Sanitary Landfill. The sole focus of EDS is the development and operation of injection disposal wells, which we believe, as does the EPA (Environmental Protection Agency), offer the safest method for disposal of liquid wastes.

2. From the start of this project, EDS has considered southeast Michigan its primary market. Disposal capacity will be offered first to the needs of Romulus industry and the remediation of contaminated sites within the City. Capacity will then be made available to the balance of the southeast Michigan area. Remaining disposal capacity, if any, will then be made available on a regional basis to qualified industrial and commercial customers with waste disposal requirements appropriate to deepwell technology. EDS has not indicated at any time the limits of its market area, in that it cannot predict local economic conditions and disposal needs. However, its location in Romulus is, and has always been, due to its focus on the southeastern Michigan market.

3. The Romulus Deepwell Facility is owned by Remus Joint Venture, a Michigan co-partnership which has several joint venture partners. EDS is a Michigan corporation owned 100% by Douglas Wicklund. EDS is the Managing Partner of the Remus Joint Venture, as well as being the General Partner of the limited partnerships which own the substantial majority interest in Remus Joint Venture. As such, EDS is solely responsible for the development and operation of the deepwell facility, and neither Remus, nor its partners, have any control or responsibility over the deepwell facility.

4. The wives of John Runco and Robert Ryan are limited partners in the Romulus Limited Partnership, one of the Remus joint ventures. Neither Mr. Ryan, Mr. Runco, nor their wives have any control or influence, either directly or indirectly, over the development and operation of the Romulus Deepwell Facility. EDS has not in the past, is not now, and will not in the future "front" for any other company or individuals. EDS is extremely proud of its recently constructed Romulus Deepwell, its financing sources which are of the highest integrity, the business and environmental opportunities resulting from its accomplishments, and, finally, the positive environmental and economic benefits which will be derived by the citizens of Romulus.

High School Student Gives Views on Well

(Reprinted from Romulus High School's Eagle Press.)

As a student in Romulus and co-editor of the Eagle Press, I read through a lot of information every day, but when reading our first article, "Is the injection well going to be leaving Romulus choking?" (issue #1, 1993 in the Eagle Press) and being raised to be environmentally conscious, I became very interested in the well.

After reading through many interesting articles, researching other wells, watching both videos released by Environmental Disposal Systems and Romulus Environmentalist Citizens Against Pollution (RECAP), and visiting both groups, my conclusion is that a Class I disposal well located in Romulus will be good for the community.

In my view, the well will bring our community more job opportunities (testers, security, transportation, etc.). New companies will look to locate, or relocate, here in Romulus due to the well.

Of utmost concern to most citizens is the environment. Instead of companies dumping behind their businesses or throwing away waste because of high shipping costs and high dumping costs, more people will be using the well for dumping, which will ultimately result in a cleaner environment.

Class I injection wells have been found to be the safest wells made; they also seem to be profitable to their communities.

I also understand the views of concerned people in Romulus, but if you don't want to visit the well, or take time out to research or listen to the facts, how do you ever expect to know what is going on in your community? I also think that if everyone is so worried that the Department of Natural Resources and the Environmental Protection Agency aren't going to follow up on their checkups, then you as concerned residents of Romulus should form a group to check and test the well, not just sit and complain about nobody doing it.

Romulus Profile: Kundan Sata, DDS

By Tom Shamanski

Educating patients about the importance of maintaining good dental health is a top priority for Kundan Sata, a Romulus dentist whose office is located at 10000 South Wayne Road. In a recent interview, the 48-year-old Sata explained why people need to know more about caring for their teeth.

"There's a saying that the mouth is the mirror of the whole body," said the 17-year Dearborn Heights resident. "When you meet someone new, one of the first things that they notice is your teeth. In many cases, I believe that your teeth can actually reflect your personality to others."

"Also," she continued, "good dental care is necessary for other reasons, such as preventing infections and eliminating bad breath."

Sata definitely practices what she preaches: For the past 10 years, she has made an annual journey to each Romulus elementary school to give educational presentations to the young students.

"Normally," said Sata, "I go to all the schools in February, since that's Dental Health Month, and we talk about dental care. One of my dental assistants dresses up like the 'Tooth Fairy,' and everyone has fun with that – in fact, it's sometimes the 'Tooth Fairy' who has the most fun of all!"

Sata went on to say that each year, on Career Day, she goes to Romulus High School to speak about dentistry and the possibility of students making a career out of the dental profession. She also noted that, whenever a school or organization invites her to speak, she's more than happy to comply.

Sata – who was born in India – picked up her bachelor's degree in dental surgery from India's Bombay University in 1968, then came to this country to join her husband of one year and to continue her education.

"In 1970," she said, "I was accepted at the University of Michigan (U of M) Dental School for a three-year advanced program. After graduating from the program in 1973, I worked at different dental offices as an associate. During that time, I was able to gain both clinical, hands-on experience and some knowledge about running a dental practice."

Subsequent to completing a five-year associateship in Taylor, Sata felt comfortable treating and communicating with patients. In 1978, when she began to search for a location where she could establish her own practice, Sata connected with Mel Morgan, who was in the process of constructing the Wayne Road office building. After a series of events and careful investigation, Sata ultimately opened the doors of her Romulus practice on June 1, 1978.

"I decided on Romulus," said Sata, "because, after my research, I concluded that the community had a real need for a dentist. Also, when I was in Taylor, many of my patients were from Romulus – which, to me, further indicated that Romulus needed a dentist."

Sata offers her patients general dentistry services, which include work that is preventative, restorative, and endodontic (such as root canals). Additionally, Sata performs simple oral surgery and extractions, as well as all other normal dental procedures.

New patients will meet Patricia Perry, dental assistant and office manager; Dawn Wilkerson, dental assistant and marketing manager; dental hygienist Pamela Stanley; and receptionist Carolyn Boyer.

"I'm very happy with them," said Sata of her staff. "They're hard working, caring, and patient-oriented. They try to accommodate our patients as much as possible."

Sata's office hours are from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Mondays; 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Tuesdays; 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Wednesdays and Thursdays; and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays.

When asked why she chose dentistry as a career, Sata replied, "I remember my mother having a bad toothache one day, when I was very young. As a result, I discovered that dentists could relieve people's pain. From then on, my dream was to become a dentist or a doctor."

One reason that Sata enjoys her work is that she finds it challenging to educate patients. When a patient begins to see concrete results from good dental care, she said, it's immensely satisfying to her. Sata also noted that patients are oftentimes fearful of pain, and she loves to show them that, today, dental work can be painless.

In touching upon a few of the difficulties that she has encountered in her dentistry career, Sata said, "At times, people hear frightening things related to receiving dental care – AIDS scare stories, for instance – and start believing them. I would encourage anyone with such fears to come and tour my office, and to talk about these things, before becoming panicky and therefore neglecting their dental care."

A second thorn, said Sata, is the fact that only 60% of the people who have dental insurance actually use it. Good dental care is essential, she said, and should be a top priority for everyone.

Since 1973, Sata has been a member of the Michigan Dental Association, the Detroit District Dental Society, the Southwestern Dental Society, and the American Dental Association. Other organizations to which she belongs include the Greater Romulus Chamber of Commerce (which she joined in 1978); Gujarati/Samaj, an Indian social organization; the Jain Society, an Indian religious association (of which she is a trustee); and other non-Indian church groups in Dearborn Heights. In keeping with her overall vision of good education, Sata also participates in the Romulus Schools' "Student of the Month" program.

Sata, who has begun to feel a need for larger quarters in which to practice, would like to have her own office building constructed.

"With my own facility," she said, "I could bring in dental specialists so that patients could get all the dental work they need under one roof."

In speaking to other future plans, Sata said that she will soon upscale the technology of her practice. She also would like to become even more involved with elementary-school students because, as she put it, "Kids are the best bet when it comes to teaching good dental care."

Sata and her husband, "Jim" Bhalchandra, were married in 1967. Bhalchandra – who has earned a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering and a master's degree in business administration – owns and operates a McDonald's franchise in Southfield. He is, smiled Sata, a very good and hard-working man.

Milan, age 24, and 18-year-old Megha are the couple's two adult children.

Son Milan is a third-year dental student at U of M and, after graduation, is looking forward to joining his mother in her practice. He is engaged to Sonia Bahrgava, who works as an industrial engineer. In her first year at U of M, daughter Megha is pursuing interests in medicine, dentistry, and dance. Beyond her school work, Megha is a volunteer in a group that dances for senior citizens and handicapped persons. Both Milan and Megha graduated from high school with honors.

Bowling, swimming, dancing, and singing are among Sata's favorite pastimes. She's also involved with several charitable groups within the Indian community. With her husband, Sata has traveled extensively, visiting such places as Mexico, Canada, Belgium, England, the Virgin Islands, and Puerto Rico.

At the end of the interview, Sata talked of her feelings about practicing dentistry in Romulus.

"I really appreciate Romulus, and I'd like to see it grow," she said. "Also, I find that I often get involved with my patients while helping them in my way. Before long, I feel as if I've become part of their family."

Indeed, Sata has worked in, and been a part of, our community "family" for more than 15 years. The residents of Romulus are fortunate to have such a personable and professionally dedicated individual working within their midst. □

A Goodfellows Thank-you

The Romulus Goodfellows wishes to express its heartfelt thanks to all who contributed to the organization's cause this year.

Thank you to the local businesses that not only made monetary donations, but took the time to collect canned goods, toys, and other items, as well. Thank you, too, to the individuals who contributed in a variety of ways, such as donating turkeys, toys, hats, gloves, and mittens. Thanks are also due to those who came in and helped pack the individual gift boxes, as well as to our Romulus firefighters and their families, who helped bag toys for the kids and endured inclement weather to stand out on the corners and sell the annual Goodfellows paper. Finally, here's a special thank-you to every citizen who purchased at least one Goodfellows paper. Your kindness and generosity are deeply appreciated. Yes, Romulus, There IS a Santa!

For the second year in a row, an anonymous donation of toys (more than a sleigh-full) was donated to the Romulus Goodfellows just in time for distribution at Christmas. We thank you, Santa, whoever you are!

Welcome, Kristy Hopkins

The Fire Department welcomes Romulus High School co-op student Kristy Hopkins to its secretarial staff. She has been a great help around the office, and brings with her a bright smile and positive attitude that makes working with her a pleasure. Welcome aboard, Kristy! New Year's Eve Party a Success!

The Fire Department would like to thank everyone who attended its New Year's Eve party, making it the most successful such party to date. There was such a tremendous turnout that some people had to be turned away at the door.

The food and music were just great, and door prizes included two round-trip tickets to anywhere in the United States. Our advice for next year's parties: Buy your tickets early!

Happy Birthday

Happy birthday to the following Department members: Ed Daughenbaugh (January 2), Craig McAughey (January 15), Bob McCraight (January 19), Chief William Greenslait (January 20), Tim Rhoton (January 25), and Brian McNeil (January 30).

Winter at Last – And Are You Ready? (Thanks to Margaret Leduc)

With the first real snowfall of winter, it is time to prepare for any winter storms.

Make sure the car is tuned up, ready for the cold weather. Prepare a car survival kit of flares, shovels, salt, ashes, a first-aid kit, a blanket, and extra boots.

Travel with caution and plan your trips. Listen to the radio about road conditions and weather forecasts. In the cold weather, water mains can break, causing traffic problems and accidents.

Take care of your health. Stock up on canned goods, powdered milk, and non-perishable foods with high energy value (peanut butter, raisins, etc.). An ample amount of drinking water should be on hand. Don't neglect yourself. Eating and dressing properly can provide natural warmth. Well-balanced meals help the body produce its own heat, and several layers of clothing provide increased protection. This is important since Michigan's winter weather often fluctuates.

Be sure that you have adequate medical supplies for the winter ahead. Check with your doctor to see which medications might interfere with your body's temperature control, and take your temperature regularly. On a really cold day, you might not be as warm as you think. Hypothermia is particularly threatening to older adults. When a person's internal body temperature drops below 95°F, he or she can experience confusion, slurred speech, stiff muscles, or even uncontrollable shivering. If symptoms of hypothermia occur, results could be fatal. Check with your doctor immediately.

Pace your outdoor activity if you must go outdoors and exert yourself in cold weather. If possible, ask a friend or neighbor to help with any heavy work, such as shoveling. Keep a thermos of some warm beverage nearby while outside. Staying active helps the body generate its own heat; however, overexertion can pose serious problems. Cold weather, itself, puts a strain on the heart, and added exercise can increase the risk of heart attack or stroke. Pay attention to windchill factor; though the temperature might read 25° above zero, the windchill factor could make it 25° below. And, since the body loses three-quarters of its heat through the head, invest in a wool hat to keep warm, even during sleep. □

January 4, 1994

To the Citizens of Romulus,

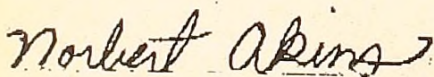

I am a resident of Romulus, and I'm writing this letter because I feel it's the only way I can be heard. My concerns stem from my experiences with regard to the EDS Deepwell Facility that has become perhaps the most controversial matter in the City. I have researched deepwell injection on my own time. I have attempted to voice my opinion on the subject at City Council meetings, but the tone of these meetings is somewhat less than receptive.

I'm angry at the people on the City Council. These people are supposed to be representing me and the other citizens of Romulus. Instead, they're representing a small, uninformed, vocal minority. The deepwell injection project was given tacit approval by the Council as far back as 1990. While I recognize that the Council membership has changed, and that not all members currently on the Council approved of the EDS Deepwell Facility three years ago, the fact remains that the Mayor and the Council continued to give EDS the nod to go ahead – in some instances formally, in others informally. They were anything but "in the dark." City permits were issued for project activities and the City attorney issued legal opinions that indicated that the City had no jurisdiction. Now that this RECAP group has kicked up its heels, the City Council seems to have lost sight of the factual history of the project and the merits that it holds for Romulus. Instead of making decisions in the City's best interests, they're oiling the squeaky wheel.

It's about time somebody else kicked up their heels. I'm urging my neighbors to get involved. If this case goes forward, everybody loses. EDS has already spent over $2 million, and if they lose in court, they are sure to come back at the City for damages. Even if they win, they will have spent a great deal of money fighting a battle that they never expected. This is sure to result in the cancellation of all benefits to the City. The City has already allocated $100,000 – $55,000 from my kids' parks and recreation money – to fund the legal process. This case could last for years, and those costs will just keep piling up, while our services and local amenities suffer. I've heard talk of possible layoffs, beginning with union workers in the City. Furthermore, the message that we're sending to other businesses seeking to locate in Romulus is anything but inviting. The quadruple whammy – higher costs, fewer services, lower revenues, and diminished prospects for the future – is clearly a NO WIN situation.

To rehash all the facts about this project, the technical aspects of deepwell technology, and the geology of the Romulus site – I'll leave that to EDS, the EPA, and the DNR. But I will say that I've done my own research, and I'm convinced of the merits of the project on the basis of safety, environmental benefits, educational opportunities/enhancements, employment opportunities, and financial impact on the City. I'm further convinced that if people don't take a stand soon, what started out as an opportunity will end up being a severe blow to this city. Take a stand. Call the Mayor. Call the Council. Get to the City Council meetings. Don't let a small group of rabble-rousers destroy a good thing. If you don't act now, we'll all be footing a hefty bill. There's a lot to be gained, and even more that might be lost. It's time to stop the posturing and hysteria, come to some cooperative agreement, and get on with taking advantage of what this project has to offer us, the citizens and children of Romulus.

Sincerely,

Norbert Akins

Downtown's New Memorabilia Store Outshines All Udders

You don't have to be old enough to remember the '50s to enjoy the merchandise on display at Udders.

By Lynn Carver

One reason that Romulus native Deborah Callison opened her new business, Udders, is because it's a "fun" store. And it's true; one has only to enter the shop – located at 36628 Goddard Road, adjacent to the new home of Romulus Auto Parts – to see that it is, indeed, a fun place to go.

First of all, the store's interior is bright and cheerful – a true delight to the eye. There's also the equally upbeat merchandise – about which Callison recently said, "We're a true nostalgia store, with several original items as well as reproductions."

In the main, Callison was referring to her 1950s-related sale items, such as gas pumps, jukeboxes, Coke machines and related memorabilia, neon clocks and signs, and custom-made formica signs. (Most of Udders' merchandise is new, except for a number of original gasoline pumps.) The business also will custom-build 1950s-era soda fountains, accessories, and dining booths.

Stepping into the store, one gets a definite feel of having turned back the clock some 40 years – and that's precisely where Callison wants it to be.

"I think the '50s were a really fun time," she said. "They were easier, too; you could get out and race, and find good places just to hang out."

"Plus," she continued, smiling now, "those were the wonderful days when you could eat literally everything and not worry about it!"

Commenting on why she chose to establish a business devoted to the 1950s, Callison replied, "I've been into cars – new, old, and drag racers – all my life, and the '50s were the best time for all of that. Also, I've lived and grown up in Romulus, and I feel that we need more interests to bring people to our city."

When Udders' grand opening took place in August 1993, the event attracted people from as far away as Kalamazoo, Canada, and Detroit's east side, according to Callison. With one of Detroit's "oldies" radio stations – WHND-AM – on hand, the grand opening also had almost 70 show-cars on display.

The personable and super-energetic Callison then told of the days when she, herself, raced motorcycles. These earlier adventures took her to motocross tracks at locales such as Brighton and Grand Blanc, Michigan, and Toledo, Ohio, among others. Callison's racing career was also partly responsible for her evolving interest in the '50s era, which eventually prompted her to open Udders.

Romulus resident Sue Evitts is the concern's manager. Evitts' work speeds up whenever Callison leaves town in order to attend memorabilia shows. Sixteen-year-old Mario Thomason also performs various tasks for the operation.

When queried as to her future plans for Udders, Callison said, "Here, we're pretty well set. With the room we have, we've got about all we can get in here. Someday, though, I'd like to open another store – one with a "classic auto" lot on the premises. That store would likely be in South Carolina."

Still speaking of future plans, Callison talked of her wish to sponsor periodic "cruise nights" at her Romulus store during the summer months.

Callison and husband Dave – a crane operator at Trenton's McLouth Steel facility – have been married for 17 years. The couple has one child, 14-year-old Kelly, whom Callison enthusiastically describes as "a sports freak."

Said Callison, "Kelly plays all the sports she can. She's a terrific kid, and I could brag about her all day!"

When away from Udders, Callison enjoys traveling. A few of the places she has visited include St. Thomas, the Bahamas, and Hawaii. She also has traveled to Toronto, Canada, several times.

As the interview drew to a close, Callison was asked why she enjoys owning her own business.

"I've got the freedom to do what I want to do," she replied. "I like people, and will help them as much as I can. I'm here to give everyone a fair deal."

For more information, call Callison at 313-941-1465. □

Re: Response to Comments regarding the Environmental Disposal Systems, Inc., Hazardous Waste Disposal Well in Romulus, Michigan

Dear Mr. Bergeron:

Thank you for your letter of December 22, 1993, regarding the Environmental Disposal Systems, Inc. (EDS), hazardous waste disposal well in Romulus, Michigan. We appreciate the opportunity to answer your questions regarding this site.

We would first like to say that the data regarding the completion of the well has recently been submitted. Because of the volume of material and the complexity involved, a full review will not be completed for some time. Therefore, any responses made must be considered in that light.

Your first two questions are related, and therefore will be answered together. We are currently reviewing the data for the injection of non-hazardous and non-banned hazardous waste only. At this time, our review indicates that the well is constructed properly, and will be protective of Underground Sources of Drinking Water (USDWs). However, the safety is also related not only to the construction, but also the operation of the site. While we cannot predict how the site will be operated, numerous safeguards will be implemented to ensure the safe and proper operation of the facility. This will include continuous monitoring of the well to ensure no leaks are present, alarm systems which will shut the well down if a problem occurs, waste analysis to monitor what is going down the well, and periodic inspections to review the operation.

In regards to the waste coming up in other communities, this has never happened in Region 5 since the beginning of our program. A preliminary review of the geology indicates this will not occur, and the permit would not have been issued if this possibility was even remotely likely. Instances where waste has migrated upwards are extremely rare, and occurred before the current construction and operating requirements were in force. Where it has happened was generally related to high injection pressures and improperly plugged wells in the immediate vicinity which penetrated the injection zone. This is not the case for the EDS site. For other sites in the state, vertical migration of waste is estimated to be no more than a couple hundred of feet above the injection zone, which is generally 3000 - 3500 feet below any potential drinking water source, and horizontal migration of waste is no more than 1 - 2 miles over a 20 - 30 year period. All wells within a 2 mile radius from the EDS well and which will penetrate the confining zone were reviewed during the permitting process, and no improperly plugged wells were found.

We wish to note, however, that we cannot and do not guarantee that no problems will ever occur at this site. At this time, the review of the material is still ongoing, and no authorization to inject will be given until all the data has been reviewed and found to be adequate.

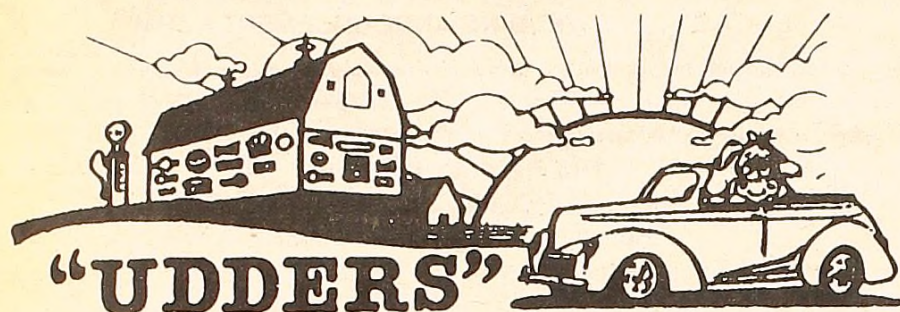

I hope this has answered your questions. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact David Werbach of my staff at (312) 886-4242.

Sincerely yours,
